LIVE seminar, workshops and a lifetime of knowledge

In this session, learn how to differentiate between pressure and other wounds. We will review the skin integrity of bariatric patients, as well as different types of skin problems associated with obesity. We will offer practical suggestions for preventing and treating these patients while discussing physiological requirements and complications of wound healing associated with obesity. Finally we will review the NEW International Pressure Ulcer guidelines in a format that will help you determine and summarize what is working in your care settings and what areas need improvement.

Seminar Objectives

Upon conclusion participants will be able to:

- Identify key interventions to include in pressure ulcer prevention care plans based upon pressure ulcer risk factors.
- Differentiate which topical dressings, agents, and/or therapies to utilize for treatment of pressure ulcers based upon clinical assessment.
- Identify factors and characteristics needed to determine the etiology of pressure ulcers, diabetic ulcers, mucosal pressure ulcers, and moisture associated skin damage.
- Describe 3 or more interventions for skin fold management of the bariatric patient
- Identify 3 or more skin problems associated with obesity
